DAVID BALDACCI'S SUSPENSE NOVELS

David Baldacci is the best-selling author of suspense novels. A former lawyer, Baldacci is frequently compared by critics to novelist John Grisham. Baldacci’s rise to the best-seller lists has been characterized by many as meteoric. His novels have been translated into over 40 languages with sales in over 80 countries with an estimate of over 100 million print copies worldwide.

The nation's capital is the setting of The Camel Club, which introduces a group of four middle-aged men who have a shared suspicion of those who wield political power. Baldacci turns to murder in Split Second and its sequels, all of which feature former Secret Service agents Sean King and Michelle Maxwell. In the Shaw and James series, a secret government-endorsed band of highly trained, highly motivated “agents” spend their days hunting down some of the world’s most notorious criminals and “monsters.” John Puller is a combat veteran and the best military investigator in the U.S. Army’s Criminal Investigative Division. Will Robie is a stone-cold hitman for the US government who never questions orders and always nails his target.
